This short-term immersion is designed to provide student-teachers with first hand experience working with students in a different cultural context, thereby helping them develop valuable skills to prepare them to teach in diverse learning environments. Students will participate in Spanish language classes and visit graduate education classes at Universidad Iberoamericana, affording the opportunity to learn about and exchange views about education with Mexican students. Students will further develop their intercultural competence through service learning while volunteering in a school in Guanajuato, and living with a local family, for a truly immersive experience.

Program Dates:

On-campus: May - July
Travel Dates:
June 16-26, 2016

Cost:
$2,250

Cost includes: non-refundable application charge, ED course and Spanish language instruction on-site, lodging & breakfasts daily in Mexico, in-country excursions and international health insurance.

Some meals and personal expenses are not included.

Courses:

ED 590 - Special Topics in Teaching and Learning (6 cr)
or
ED 795 - Exploring Diversity in Classroom and Community (6 cr)

Apply Now!

studyabroad.ncsu.edu
Rolling admissions through February 15
Scholarships: apply by November 15

Program Contact Information:
Dr. Micha Jeffries
I+DEA, College of Education
mijeffri@ncsu.edu
919-515-1578